

The International Market in Film and Television Programs, Ablex, 1993.

Edited by Eli M. Noam and Joel C. Millonzi

Contents

About the Authors	vii
Introduction	xi
1 Trends in Global Traffic of Television Programs Tapio Varis	1
2 The Economics of Trade in Recorded Media Products in a Multilingual World: Implications for National Media Policies Steven S. Wilman and Stephen E. Siwek	13
3 Media Americanization, National Culture, and Forces of Integration Eli M. Noam	41
4 World Television Trade: The Economic Effects of Privatization and New Technology David Waterman	59
5 The Gray Market in Video, Consumer Welfare, and Public Policy: An Economic Analysis Jonathan B. Baker	83
6 The Internationalization of the Television Program Market: Media Imperialism or International Division of Labor? The Case of the United Kingdom Richard Collins	125
7 Expanding Competition in the International Market—An Industry Perspective Jack Valenti	147
8 International Trade in Television Programs: Quota Policies and Consumer Choice Revisited Jean-Luc Renaud	151
9 A Taste of Money: Popular Culture and the Economics of Global Television Michael Tracey	163
Author Index	199
Subject Index	