Contents

Notes on contributors ix

Preface: Decentralization and deregulation on the march
Harvey M. Sapolsky xi

1 Is telecommunications truly revolutionary?
Lester C. Thurow 1

2 Beyond the Golden Age of the public network
Eli M. Noam 6

3 The politics of deregulation
Alan Altshuler 11

4 Did regulation keep pace with technology?
Peter Temin 18

5 The significance of Telecom 2000
Kenneth Robinson 28

6 On thinking about deregulation and competition
Michael E. Porter 39

7 Viewing divestment from afar
Douglas C. Pitt and Kevin Morgan 45

8 The ecology of games in telecommunications policy
William H. Dutton 65

9 The economics of international competition
Charles Jonscher 89

10 The economics of international telecommunications
Alfred C. Sikes 94

11 A history of recent German telecommunications policy
Eberhard Witte 98

12 The future of German telecommunications
Karl-Heinz Neumann 102

13 Telecommunications policy in France
Jean-Pierre Chamoux 109

14 Telecommunications policy in Japan
Tetsuro Tomita 114

15 The politics of international telecommunications reform
Jill Hills 120

16 The struggle for control within the telecommunications networks
Marvin A. Sirbu 140

17 The future of the telecommunications marketplace
Peter F. Cowhey 149
18 TV technology and government policy
   Rhonda J. Crane 155
19 Negotiating the world information economy
   Geza Feketekuty 167
   Epilogue: Communications policy in crisis
   W. Russell Neuman 199

Glossary 206
Index 208